DataSpring Powered by CAQH® Provider FAQs

CAQH stands for the Council for Affordable Quality Healthcare. It is a non-profit organization in the United States that creates shared, digital tools to make medical administration and insurance paperwork easier for doctors, nurses, and health insurance plans.

CAQH is now DataSpring, Powered by CAQH. It is a web-based solution that captures and shares accurate, timely, electronic, self-reported provider data for credentialing.

The easy-to-use DataSpring, Powered by CAQH® Provider Data Portal saves time and eliminates the need for redundant, time-consuming paper forms and faxes. It simplifies data collection by prompting a Practitioner to enter only the data required for the state(s) where they practice. Practitioners can re-attest their credentialing data in minutes and easily confirm their directory information directly in the portal. Information is submitted securely, electronically, and only once, so a Practitioner can spend less time filling out forms and more time caring for their patients. Updated information is immediately available to organizations authorized by the Practitioner. Available in all 50 states and the District of Columbia, the Provider Data Portal is free to Practitioners
